ciple, That It is ineffective in Operation, and That It Is a Great Barrier to Our Commercial Interests in the Orient.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 .- The fact has developed within the last few weeks that practically every officer of the Government who has anything to do with the adminstration of the Chinese Exclusion law alleves that it is ineffective in its operation and that the statute which forbids Chinese laborers to enter the country should not be renewed when it expires by limitation early next May. Secretary Gage and all the chief officers of the Treasury Department, with the exception of Mr. Powderly, Commissioner General of Immigration, believe that the law is wrong in principle, that it is ineffective in operation and that the great commercial interests of the United States demand that it should not be renewed by Congress next spring. So pronounced is this feeling that it was thought at one time that Secretary Gage would recommend in plain terms, in his at al report, that the law be not reenacted. 'The friends of the law have been so active, however, and the opposition on the Pacific Coast to the free immigration of Chinese on an equality with other foreigners has been manifested in so pronounced a way, that it is doubtful if Secretary Gage or any officer of the Government will come out squarely in favor of the repeal of the

The reason for the existence of the Chinese Exclusion law on the statute books, as is well known, is the result of persistent agitation of bodies of organized labor throughout the country; and when the Geary bill was being debated in Congress ten years ago it was evident that the politics which demanded its passage was due to the representations made by the labor organizations. The Federal officials have been loath to admit until recently that there was anything amiss with the administration of the Exclusion law. The duty of administering it was vested in the Treasury Department and was placed in charge of special agents appointed for that purpose until a year or two ago, when the duty of carrying out the provisions of the law was assigned to the Immigration Bureau

As the time approaches when the question of reënacting the Geary law will be presented to Congress, the Treasury officials have begun to consider, from the experience of the last ten years, the wisdom of the Exclusion act. They do not hesitate to admit now that the best efforts of the Government agents to accomplish what the Geary law was designed to accomplish have not met with flattering success. They do not care to make the statement publicly, but they nevertheless believe that very few of they nevertheless believe that very few of the hundreds or thousands of Chinese who are annually turned back from our ports ultimately fail to gain admittance to the country. Hundreds of Chinese come to San Francisco every year with an absolute guarantee from one or another of the pow-erful "Six Companies" of Chinese in that city that they will be enabled to land. If the Federal agents deport them they return the Federal agents deport them they return to China, and in a few months try again, either at San Francisco or at some other port, and eventually succeed in landing.

The impracticability of enforcing the Exclusion law, however, is not the controlling reason of Secretary Gage's attitude. The events of the last few years, he believes, have demonstrated the folly, from the American commercial standpoint, of main-American commercial standpoint, of main-taining the present barriers against Chinese immigrants. He, with other progressive officials of the Gevernment, holds that the success of the United States in obtaining a large share in the commerce of the Orient is conditional on a more liberal treatment of the Chinese. He argues that we cannot maintain the preference for our Government which was shown by China during the late negotiations of the Powers at Pekin unless we allow the Exclusion law Pekin unless we allow the Exclusion law to die its natural death next spring.

The question of resnacting the law has lately been brought very forcibly to the attention of the Treasury Department by the agitation of the subject on the Pacific Coast. The labor organizations have already set up a loud clamor in behalf of the reenactment of the Geary law, and the Mayor of San Francisco has called a marting. already set up a loud clamor in behalf of the reenactment of the Geary law, and the Mayor of San Francisco has called a meeting of the various interests throughout the Pacific Coast, to be held in that city, for the purpose of discussing the law and memorializing Congress for its reenactment. Columbia or Mexico, after having landed in those countries with the deliberate purpose of entering the United States.

It cost $300,000 last year to administer the Geary law, and the immigration officials admit that the number of Chinese inspectors is lamentably small and that the needs of the service, under the present system, demand an appropriation at least twice as large as was made last year. Even the the officials have no confidence that then the officials have no confidence that the results expected from the law could be accomplished.

GEN. GREELY HOME FROM MANILA He Says the Situation in the Philippines Is Very Encouraging.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 .- Brig.-Gen. A. W. Greely, chief of the Signal Corps of the army, who has been to the Philippines on an inspection trip under orders from the Secretary of War, has returned. Rethe Secretary of War, has returned. Referring to the general situation in the Philippines, he said to-day to a Sun reporter:

"I found conditions much more favorable than I had expected. It is true that there have been some outbreaks, but that is not surprising in such a country as the Philippines and with such people. On the whole, the situation is very encouraging. I formed no positive opinion as to the number of troops that will be necessary to maintain order. There has been already some reduction, I believe, and the officials in the island will do very well, indeed, if they can get along with a military force of $5,000."

Gen. Greely made a thorough inspection of the military telegraph lines in the islands and found their operation very satisfactory. He returned to the United States by way of Europe and completed arrangements with the cable and telegraph companies connecting Manila wits the outside world to reduce the toils on Goversment business between the United States and the Philippines. He secured a reduction of about one-third of the former rate.

NEW MINISTER FROM BELGIUM. Baron Moncheur Formally Presented to the President.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 .- The new Minister of Belgium to the United States, Baron Moncheur, was formally presented to President Roosevelt at the White House this morning. In his address to the President, after expressing the cordial good will of Belgium toward the United States, he said:

The Treasury Department has learned from other sources, however, that the railroads and steamship lines and the great commercial bodies on the Pacific Coast are in favor of allowing the law to pass out of existence. These bodies, as far as they are not controlled in their expressions by organized labor bodies, have taken an uncompromising position in favor of letting down the bars against Chinese immigration. They represent the great forces in the Western part of the continent which are making for the upbuilding of our commerce in the Orient and for the development of the resources of the Coast region.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The clubhouse of the Westward Ho Golf Club, two miles north of Oak Park and near Mount Clare, was burned to the ground last evening, together with two large water tanks and small sheds that had been erected around the building, the entire loss aggregating about $15.500. The fire started about 5:30 o'clock in the southeast corner of the clubhouse, and is supposed to have originated from a log fire that was burning in a grate and was throwing sparks up the chiunney. The fire was discovered by one of the members of the club, who chanced to step outside of the locker room, and noticed a small flame in the roof. He shouted to the members of the club and the visitors, there being about thirty in the house. The men tried to secure water, but only a few bucketfuls were available, as the pipes to the well had been frozen during the previous night, and had burst. Then the men turned their efforts to saving the property in the locker room and the main clubhouse. There was no insurance. The BUSY DAY WITH BEAGLES, Many Trials for National Honors on W. C. Whitney's Estate.

The judges and officials in charge of the twelfth annual field trials of the National Beagle Club were astir early yesterday morning and the sport began at 7 o'clock on the estate of W. C. Whitney at Wheatley Hills. The first was Class B, for all ages, 13 inches and under. Somerset Kennel's imp Hector defeated Herman D. Brun's Marsha Saxe in the first trial In the second the Waldingfield Beagles' Orator scored a victory over the Wharton Beagles' Wharton Cham pion. D. F. Sommers's Ring and the Rock Ridge Kennel's Caution of Radnage tried conclusions next. Caution of Radnage showed the better nose and won. George Post's Hector and Wharton Champion met ost's Hector and Wharton Champion met the next trail. Champion did all the work, dinning easily. George Post's Hector then cored a win over Caution of Radnage. This ompleted the class and the judges decided s follows: First, Waldingfield Beagles' frator: second, Wharton Kennel's Wharton champion: third, George Post's Hector, lock Ridge Kennel's Caution of Radnage eserved.

Champion: third, George Post's Hector.
Rock Eidge Kennel's Caution of Radnage reserved.

Class B B, for bitches, 13 inches and under, followed. The Rock Ridge Kennels' Ida Navice II and the Wharton Beagles' Wharton Madcap were the first pair down, Madcap winning. The second trial was between Dr. Charles F Brook's Bessie B, and the Rock Ridge Kennel's Treble. They found but one rabbit, but that was enough for Treble to show his ability and he got the award. The Waldingfield Beagles' Active and Nassau Beagles' Nassau Moonlight were the next down. Moonlight won after a long trial, lasting one hour and seven minutes. Then the Wharton Beagles' Merry Lass was pitted against Thornfield's Sister, owned by George F. Reed. Four rabbits were started and Merry Lass won a long-drawn-out trial. Dr Brook's Bridget B defeated Merry Lass in the next trial. Treble and Bridget B, met and one of the biggest surprises of the meet occurred, for Treble was beaten after a bot contest. Madcap and Treble were then tried and Treble redeemed himself. The awards were: First, Bridget B; second. Treble; third, Madcap; Ida Novice II. reserved.

The National Derby followed. This is for dogsand bitches, 15 inches and under, whelped on or after Jan 1, 1900. George F. Reed's The National Derby followed. This is for dogsand bitches, 15 inches and under, whelped on or after Jan. 1, 1900. George F. Reed's Foxie and Sommers's Frick met first. Five rabbits were turned and the driving was poor. Foxie received the verdict. The Waldingfield Beagles' Freedom and D. F. Sommers's Florist met in the final trial of the day and Florist won.

SALE OF HORSE SHOW BOXES.

HIGHEST PRICE ON RECORD FOR A SINGLE CHOICE SINCE 1892.

Total of the Sale $20,000, About $5,000 More Than Last Year-Thomas W. Lawson Gets the First Box Sold for $635 -Competition for Choice Places

Automobiles and carriages were lined up before the Garden Theatre yesterday after noon as though a matinée was on, but it was only Frank Clark, the superintendent of the Coney Island Jockey Club, giving his annual monologue in the theatre and it netted $30,000 for the National Horse Show Association. In other words it was the yearly advance sale of boxes for the Horse Show, which begins on Nov. 18, at which Clark, who is the superintendent of the tanbark ring, as well as of the race course, always acts as auctioneer. The sale is always regarded as a sort of curtain raiser that indicates the degree of suc-cess the show proper will attain. By this test the show will be a hummer, for the total falls short only of the banner year, 1802, when the total was $52,000. It was just short of $5,000 more than last year, when the amount realized was $25,600. Prizes have jumped since 1899 and 1898, when the respective totals were $17,100 and $18,100. As last year the sale was held in the theatre instead of in the Madison Square concert hall, where a dainty luncheon with tea and punches used to be served and after the bidding the patrons would while away an hour in small talk. But now the gossip and friendly meetings are reserved until the show itself. Each year the bidding is more business-like than the year before and there is no time for idling. There were many well-known riding and driving personages present yesterday, but like the few agents who always slip in they were only engrossed in getting the places they wanted. The theatre was at no time crowded during the hour and a half the sale lasted for when satisfied the bidders hurried away while others were always coming in to take up the quest. A large diagram of the boxes and seats had the centre of the stage and Auctioneer Clark pointed out their location as he called for bids. The second tier boxes last year were replaced with chairs, making twenty-eight boxes less than in 1899, and the same arrangement will be adopted this year. The usual arena boxes were reserved for the members of the Executive Committee.

Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, who has had more luck with Glorious Bornie and his heavy harness horses than with trotters or affoat, bought the first arena box offered. No. 27, for $635. Last year he paid $625 for this box, the top price of the sale. There was active competition for the box Lawson bought, a number of women making bids until the $550-mark had been passed. The same scene was repeated when the second box was sold. No. 37, which went to J. H. Moore of Chicago, a newcomer, for $635. W. H. Moore, a relative, bought the adjoining box for $600. The high price was reached on the third box. No. 38, which was knocked down to George J. Bascom for $650. This box last year cost him $600. Later on C. K. G. Billings paid $655 for the March was knocked down to George J. Bascom for $650. This box last year cost him $600. Later on C. K. G.
